The Dick brothers, Mathew, John, and Jacob immigrated to the United States from Bavaria in 1854. Within two years, the brothers settled in Quincy, and in 1860, began the Dick Brothers Brewery at York and Ninth Streets. By 1895, their business had become the largest brewery in the state of Illinois. The Dicks also owned the Dick Brothers Milling Company, a grain and milling operation.

When the three founders of the company died, their sons continued the family business. Albert Dick, the son of Mathew Dick, became the company's secretary. The business prospered for over 90 years, until 1953 when the company liquidated.

In 1889, Albert and Anna B. Geiferech married, and later had two sons, Arthur J. and Willis E. Dick. Also in 1889, Albert and Anna built the house at 1100 State Street. Buerkin and Kaempfen were contractors for the project, charging $1,140 for the brickwork and $900 for the stonework.

The property was sold to George L. Klein in 1931.

Mathew Finlay was born in Ireland in 1821. By 1847, Finlay had gone into the clothier business with William Powers at 328 Maine Street in Quincy, Illinois. Finlay broke from the partnership in 1876 and began his own business as a merchant tailor at 328 Maine Street.

In 1861, Mathew Finlay constructed his house at 1617 Hampshire Street at the cost of $10,000. This amount was second in Quincy that year, only to John Wood's octagonal house which cost $100,000 to construct.¹ The house has been owned by only two families in its entire history.

The Mathew B. and Electa L. Finlay House is an excellent example of the Italianate style. The massing, materials, and symmetry follow those of most Italianate homes. The attention to detail, shown in the doorway, cupola, the window crowns, porch, and brackets represent high-style Italianate decoration. There is a very similar house to the Finlays at 421 Jersey Street.

The house of Mathew B. and Electa L. Finlay is listed on the National Register of Historic Places as a contributing property of the East End Historic District.

That the Historical Name of the house is the Morris and Lebra Felsenheld House.

That the historical significance of 1422 Maine Street is as follows:

Morris Felsenheld was born in Bavaria in 1835. When Felsenheld was thirteen years old, he moved to the United States. He settled in Pennsylvania, New York, and Aurora, Illinois before coming to live in Quincy in 1871. Morris Felsenheld and Emmanuel Felsenheld owned and operated a dry goods business located at 420 Maine Street. The partnership dissolved, and Morris Felsenheld continued the business on his own.

In 1876, Morris Felsenheld built the house at 1422 Maine Street. It was designed in the Eastlake version of the Queen Anne Style. The Felsenheld house is unique because of the decorative brickwork and stonework, and also because of the wood carvings on the porches and cornice. Morris Felsenheld was a member of the Masonic Order, and his interest in the organization shows in the Masonic symbols carved throughout the interior woodwork.

The Morris Felsenheld House is listed on the National Register of Historic Places as a contributing property of the East End Historic District.
