

1651 Jersey

The home of Jack and Daryl Freiburg is an example of the modified late Victorian circa 1900. The masonry quality of this all-stone house is characteristic of that period. The interior plan is similar to contemporary late 19th century houses in its suite arrangement of stairs, hall parlor and dining room. The woodwork in the living area is butternut including the parlor mantle which is not the original but was acquired from another home in the north side of Quincy. African mahogany was used in the newer addition of the house to blend with the butternut.
