

Restoration of the kitchen is in progress. The chimney was recently uncovered. The bell monitor on the south wall is still in working condition for the front door and butler bell in the kitchen. Children love to step on the oriental rug medallion to ring the bell and summon the butler!

The second floor of the Williamson House (not open to the public) houses bedrooms, built-in linen room and baths, with the baths being notable for the well preserved marble baseboards, sink and shower.

andan                      "air                      conditioner                      in                      the                      summer